What Is It
that makes a person so dull and sleepy in the Spring of the year. It is owing to the reaction that takes place after a cold winter. It is a fact which all know that cold and frosty weather stimulates the appetite and digestion; consequently during the Winter months most persons eat too much, and when Spring sets in and warm weather comes, they feel dull and sleepy after eating, and debilitated. Now, this is owing to the fact that the secretions which are necessary for healthy digestion have become depressed and vitiated by over stimulation. Now, what is necessary is to restore the secretions at once. This should be accomplished by a medicine composed of Roots and Barks and not stimulated by alcoholic nostrums or by mineral medicines.
LYMAN'S DANDELION BITTERS

LIVING WITNESSES

You can Avoid the biliousness of Spring by purification of the blood and the expulsion of foul humors. Impure blood gives you a pale, sickly color, with a dark, yellow tinge. The low temperature of a severe winter often leaves heavy, dark lines beneath your eyes. You are drowsy and sleepy. Be admonished. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla before the eruptions break through the skin.

Blood Disorder.
NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 28, 1883.
I TAKE pleasure in sending you a testimonial showing the efficacy of Hood's Sarsaparilla in a case of Blood Disorder, which came under my personal observation. It was a severe case, and the cure is regarded as wonderful.
F. E. McCULLY.
Lafayette Pharmacy, Congress st.
A young girl, 9 years old, had been troubled with a disorder in her blood since infancy. Her sight as well as her hearing, was affected. She was obliged to leave school, for none of the children would sit beside her. Her parents tried many medicines, and she was admitted a patient in one of our hospitals, but without relief. The mother had found Hood's Cook Book of value, and was impressed by the wonderful cures published in it. She resolved to try Hood's Sarsaparilla on her daughter. The result was most happy. On the second bottle the child began to improve, and after three bottles her sight and hearing returned. She has now used five bottles, and is about cured.

Lanced 10 Times.
LYME CENTRE, N. H., Feb. 9, 1883.
My little girl was sorely afflicted with Scrofula from 3 months old till she was 20, when we commenced giving her HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. So virulent was the Scrofula that the doctor had lanced her neck ten times. Then we thought it was time to do something. It was in February, 1882, that she began to take HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA. At that time there was a very large bunch on her little face. This we expected to open with the lancet; but, to our surprise, the bunch began to shrink under the influence of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, and now it has entirely disappeared. It is gone. Baby is on her third bottle. She is in good flesh. Sores all gone, her appetite is good, and she seems as well as any child.
WM. H. CONANT.
ATTEST: I live neighbor to Mr. and Mrs. Conant, and have always known them and their little girl ever since she was born. The above statement I know to be true.
THEODORE BALCH.

Rheumatism.
Capt. Mitchell of the bark Antoine Sala, New York and Havana trade, came home in May, 1882, entirely helpless with rheumatism. He went to the mountains with his wife, at whose request Capt. Mitchell made use of Hood's Sarsaparilla. He commenced to improve right away under the influence of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and was soon able to return to Brooklyn. In two months from his first trying Hood's Sarsaparilla his rheumatism was gone, and he sailed in command of his vessel a well man. His wife writes: My husband is 48 years of age, and his health is now better than it has been for some time; he has gained several pounds in weight. If any wish to inquire more particularly they can address MRS. M. L. MITCHELL, 701 Monroe street, Brooklyn N. Y.

The great relief and release from suffering obtained in each of the following cases was due to the wonderful power of Hood's Sarsaparilla in purifying the blood, overcoming spring debility, sharpening the appetite, vitalizing and renovating the whole system. This results from its peculiar composition and manufacture. A medicine, like anything else, can be fairly judged by its results.

After Diphtheria.
HATTIE BURNS, my little girl, had the Diphtheria and got well of it. After that she was powerful sick in her bowels, and had fearful hurtings in the small of her back. She was in great pain and distress. We called the doctor, who gave her powders. Upon my word the child grew worse. I had buried eight children, and was very uneasy to save my little girl, we were all so fond of her. But she would lie round the house and get no rest at all. Her insides seemed to be all given out. And well, I didn't know what to do. I sent a neighbor's boy for a bottle of HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, and that night I gave the little girl the first dose, and again in the morning. Before the day was out she was playing around the house. Her pains were gone. From that day till now she has been well and is wholly recovered. Her flesh has come back, she is fat as ever, and as mirthful and lively as before she was sick—full of spirits to the delight of us all.
MRS. JAMES BURNS,
46 Market Street, Lowell.
Mrs. Burns is the wife of James Burns, the well known and esteemed master slater in Lowell, Mass.

Salt Rheum.
My little four-year-old girl has a powerful eruption on her face and head. Under her eyes it was regular scalding red and sore like a burn. Back of her left ear we had to shave her hair close to her head. Five or six physicians and two hospitals gave up her case as incurable, save that she might outgrow it. When it began to maturate I became alarmed. In three weeks with Hood's Sarsaparilla, the sores began to heal; two bottles made her eyes as clear as ever. To-day she is as well as I am.
JOHN CAREY,
164 D Street, South Boston.
Attest: I know John Carey. He is an honest, good man, whose statements are worthy of entire credit. I believe what he says about the child's sickness.
CLINTON H. COOK, Mill st., Boston.

The Lame Walk.
This certifies that I have been troubled with varicose veins and a scrofulous humor for the past 12 or 15 years—at times so severely as to compel me to use a crutch, or to abstain from business entirely. About four months since, upon the recommendation of one of my neighbors, I commenced using HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA, and have, up to the present time, used two bottles and a half of it. My leg is entirely healed, I gain daily in strength, and have at all times a good appetite. I can most cheerfully recommend it to any one who is suffering as I was.
C. M. FRENCH, Franklin, N. H.
Mr. French is well known in the upper part of Merrimac county, N. H., and inquiry may be freely made of his wonderful and surprising cure. He has discontinued his crutches, but will show them to any one who will call upon him.

AMERICAN CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATIONS—THE TWENTY-FIFTH ANNUAL CONVENTION.

We have received the following report of the twenty-fifth annual convention of the American Christian Associations, which convened in Milwaukee, Monday, May 14:

The opening session was held at 10 A. M., in the Grand Avenue Congregational church. Mr. J. L. Wheat, of Louisville, President of the Cleveland Convention of 1881, opened the Convention.

A Committee to nominate officers for the Convention was appointed, and while they were deliberating, Messrs. W. Hind Smith, of London, Secretary of the English Associations, W. H. Newett, Secretary of the Manchester Association, and Percy Bankart, Secretary of the London Association, were introduced. Mr. Smith presented a letter of greeting from the Right Honorable the Earl of Shaftsbury, K. G., President of the London Y. M. C. A., and from Mr. Geo. Williams, of London, founder of the Christian Association. The following officers were elected:

President—Hon. C. L. Colby, of Milwaukee.

Vice-Presidents—B. H. Warner, Washington; J. Murray Smith, Montreal; J. L. Houghtaling, Chicago; Jas. Bowron, Nashville; C. A. Jewel, Hartford; H. B. Chamberlin, Denver.

Recording Secretary—F. A. Hatch, Kansas City.

Assistant Secretaries—J. N. Shannon, Quebec; C. K. Ober, Boston; H. E. Sheaad, San Francisco.

In the afternoon, after the usual devotional exercises, Hon. C. L. Colby delivered an address of welcome on behalf of the business men of the city.

Mr. R. R. McBurney, of New York, a member of the International Committee, in the absence of Mr. Cephas Brainerd, chairman, presented the report of the Committee. It gives the fact of the incorporation of the committee by act of the New York legislature, and the receiving of a legacy of $5000 from Mr. Wm. E. Dodge, of New York in aid of its German work. It gives a vast amount of valuable statistical information, showing the present condition of every department of association work. In this connection it may be of interest to know that when the first convention of the Young Men's Christian Associations was held in Buffalo, N. Y. in 1854, there were only thirty-five associations in this country, of which sixteen were represented in that convention by twenty-eight delegates. At the convention held in Albany in 1866, the International committee was appointed and to it was committed the advisory supervision of the association work. At that time there were one hundred and eighty-seven associations, employing three general secretaries, and owning no buildings. In that convention forty-seven associations were represented. The first year the International Committee expended about $800. At the present Convention there are about six hundred and fifty delegates and corresponding members from some four hundred and fifty Associations. There are about 1,000 Associations, employing 323 secretaries. There are 72 buildings, worth $3,391,750, and ... property owned by the Associations ... over and above all debts make a total of $4,171,519. Since the last convention 14 new buildings have been dedicated, and new buildings are in process of erection at Boston, costing $100,000; Buffalo, $75,000; Pittsburg, $...; Newburg, $20,000; 46 have buildings funds paid in amounting to $296,934, the ... of them will soon own buildings. The International Committee employs 11 secretaries and assistants, and expended last year $25,685. There are 15 State Secretaries and assistants, and the cost of the State work was $20,229, and for buildings and current expenses of International, State and local Associations over $1,000,... was given during the year.

It recommends that $30,000 be provided for the greatly enlarged and growing work of the Committee. The report closed with the following practical suggestions:

It has been supposed by some members of the Committee that the foundation principles and purposes of the Associations have been some time already fixed and settled and were now elementary in the minds of all who are taking interest in Association work. And yet there seems still to subsist in some quarters the idea that the Young Men's Christian Association is an organization for the prosecution of any benevolent work that any man or woman thinks ought to be performed; forgetting the proposition that the Young Men's Christian Associations represent primarily, if they have a right to exist at all, a work for Christ, for young men and by young men.

The Committee desires to send into the field only men who are in the possession of the history of Association work in this country, and who, from more or less service in Association work, are experimentally acquainted with it. The Committee is met over and over again in its efforts to fill these places, by suggestions from those who make the calls, that there is this young man, or that young man; this middle-aged man or that one; and sometimes this old man, who is a Christian man, who is out of employment, and who can not get anything to do. The members of this Association should bear in mind that the three elements just specified are not at all the elements essential to the making of a good general secretary. A man may be a Christian, and may be out of employment, and may be unable to get any, and yet be absolutely unfit for a general secretary. And the employment of such men, with the rarest exceptions, as general secretaries, is disastrous, and will at any time bring to naught a two or three weeks' service by one of the secretaries of the Committee in collecting the money to carry on a local Association and to pay the debts caused by previous bad management.

On Tuesday morning, after devotional exercises, Mr. Warner, Vice President, took the chair. There was a survey of the field and work of the International Committee as related to General Secretaries, followed by a paper by Mr. W. C. Douglas, of St. Louis, on "The reason why a local Association should employ a General Secretary." The discussion brought out the fact that during the past two years training schools for secretaries have been established at four points, in which young men qualified for secretaries are trained for the work. 74 young men have passed ... at 106 points. During the two years 110 secretaries have left the work.

On Thursday afternoon, after a Bible reading by Mr. R. A. Orr, of Pittsburg, the work in the West was taken up, and showed most remarkable growth; 106 new Associations have been organized; and 59 new general secretaries added to the list since the convention two years ago. The remainder of the afternoon was given to various phases of state work, each department being opened in a brief address by one of the state secretaries. On Thursday night the work among Railway men was the topic for the entire evening, a large number of Railway men gave their testimony in regard to the efficiency of the work. There are now over a million men employed by Railway Corporations. It is only some half dozen years since the International Committee took up this definite work for Railway men. There are 70 Railway Associations employing 61 Secretaries, and the Railway Corporations contribute $50,000 of the $75,000 expended annually in this work. Seven Railway Association Buildings, costing $30,000 are now owned by Associations. Hon. C. L. Colby, President of the Wisconsin Central R. R., closed the discussion of the railway topic.

On Friday morning the report of the Committee on the International Committee's Report was presented, and subscriptions to the work of the committee received.

On Saturday, work in the South, and work among college students and for colored young men was considered. Rev. E. R. Hendricks, D. D., spoke on college work.

On Sunday, the exercises were of a distinctly religious character. No business was transacted. A young men's meeting was held in the afternoon, and the farewell meeting at night.

The growth in the quality of association work has been more remarkable than in its quantity. It is more spiritual and much prominence is given to Bible study and personal work. More attention is being given to good reading rooms and libraries, to social work, to classes, lectures and literary work, and to work for boys, and the associations now provide first-class gymnasiums in the leading cities.

It is a fact not generally known, that the United States Christian Commission was organized by the Young Men's Christian Association, and an Army Committee of the Association rendered very efficient help during the war in the work of the Commission. Two millions five hundred thousand dollars in money was expended, and over $3,000,000 additional was received in supplies of various kinds, nearly 5,000 delegates were sent to the army, 1,700,000 Bibles and testaments distributed, beside some 50,000,000 books, tracts, papers, etc. A similar work on a smaller scale was inaugurated and carried on by the Southern Associations in the confederate armies, particularly by the association at Richmond, Va.

STATE NEWS.

Androscoggin.

The Journal says Lewiston will refund $250,000 of its debt, now bearing six per cent. interest, in four per cent. bonds, to be dated July 1st. The new issue will consist of 150 thousand dollar bonds and 100 five hundred dollar bonds.

Aroostook.

There is a building boom in Houlton. More new buildings will be erected this season than ever before in a single year.

John A. Long of Littleton Ridge, had the index finger of his right hand taken off by a shingle saw in Titcomb's mill, Friday last.

Nelson Herrin's steamer Mabel has commenced making trips on Nickerson Lake, and will be run for towing a barge to accommodate pleasure parties the coming summer. Eugene Cook, of Presque Isle, is the engineer.

Cumberland.

The young men of Portland who play ball are much interested in having a base ball ground in the open lot on the corner of Portland and Grove streets.

Conductor Plaisted, of the Boston & Maine, was taken seriously ill with a bilious attack last Friday on his train, while on his way to Portland. He was carried to the Preble House, and was too ill to be taken home until Sunday. His friends will be pleased to hear that he is now recovering and is expected to be out in a few days.

The Press says: Detective J. R. Wood, of Boston, visited Mr. Merrill, of Cumberland, Tuesday night, and learned that the doings of Amero, the supposed Watertown murderer, at that place the day subsequent to the tragedy, were all that was wanted to connect him with the murder of Mrs. Carlton. Mr. Wood is stopping in Portland, engaged in further investigations.

The Press says: A woman aged about thirty, giving the name of Celia Fitzgerald, who has been living with Mrs. Davis, of Freeport, left her service the other day, taking a lot of personal apparel of Mrs. Davis. Deputy Sheriffs Banks and Despaux found her in Brunswick, carried her before a justice, and she was fined $15 and costs. Not being able to pay, she was committed to Portland jail.

Kennebec.

The corner stone of the new Congregational granite church edifice, at Hallowell, was laid on Monday afternoon, at 4:30 o'clock, in the presence of a large number of spectators. Rev. H. V. Emmons gave a condensed history of the building of the Old South church and its final destruction by fire on the morning of Dec. 1, 1882. The corner stone was then placed in position by the building committee.

The Journal reports a six-year-old Gardiner boy indulging freely in a propensity to appropriate other people's property.

The Augusta Journal says: There was an old gentleman in the city Wednesday who deserve notice. This is Dr. Alexander MacCallom, of North Pittston, now in the 89th year of his age. He is a doctor by profession, having practiced medicine for over sixty years in Lincoln and Kennebec counties and been very successful. He was born in New Boston, N. H., and a graduate of Dartmouth College; also of Brunswick Medical School. He was drafted in the war of 1812, but procured a substitute. The old gentleman carries a wallet which he purchased of the father of Hon. Geo. E. Weeks, of this city, over fifty years ago. What is quite surprising is that his faculties are well preserved, his eyesight being exceptionally good. His step is firm, and he walks off almost as vigorously as a young man.

Rockland is taking preliminary measures to organize a Soldiers' Monument Association and erect a soldiers' monument.

The City Council of Rockland has passed its appropriation bill for 1883, amounting to $72,690, a large increase over last year. The appropriation for the schools has been increased $1,000; for highways and sidewalks, $2,000; police, $300; salaries, $300; interest on city debt, $400. The Observer says: Rev. Mr. McGraw, of Sebec, and his lady, met with a severe accident last Sunday, by the running away of his horse, upsetting the wagon on him and injuring Mrs. McGraw. They had been stopping at Andrew Moor's and were just leaving for Bowerbank where he had an appointment that morning. Mr. M. was badly bruised, but Mrs. M.'s injuries were not serious. They were able to return home to Sebec late in the afternoon but Bowerbank and Sebec each lost a sermon that day.

Mr. Cyrus Tozier, foreman of the curtain manufactory, Fairfield, had a narrow escape from a serious accident last Monday morning. He was at work with a machine used in bordering curtain sticks, when the auger, which was making 1700 revolutions per minute, caught in the upper part of his shirt sleeve. He jumped back tearing the sleeves of both outside and under shirts from the shoulder, and the auger grazed past the flesh of the arm above the elbow. If the shirt sleeves had not given away an inch hole would have been made through his arm.

LATEST NOTES ABOUT THE FASHIONS.

[From the N. Y. Evening Post.]

Silk-worm green is soberly announced as the latest tint in that shade.

Plain jerseys of red or blue are much worn with lawn-tennis costumes.

There is a greater variety in the styles of bathing suits than was ever before displayed.

Sleeves of dresses and wraps are worn exceedingly high and full on the shoulder.

The Chinese driving cloak with sabot sleeves has taken the place this season of the French redingote.

Silk jerseys, gloves in strawberry red, pale yellow, nun's gray, and black will be more in vogue, this summer than kid gloves of any sort.

In French importations of costumes the polonaise reappears once and again in varied forms, and with endless styles of drapery and garniture.

Pale yellow and bright gold are the colors triumphant even in floral garniture. The gaudy sunflower has sunk into oblivion, but is replaced by primroses, cowslips, marigolds, kingcups, Narcissus, and marshmallows.

Burnished gold, mandarin yellow, and the creamy shade of raw silk are the tints in yellow more favored this season than that of old gold or copper color, so fashionable last year; while sage green has given way to a peculiar leaden-green known as porphyry; and cadet blue is replaced by nemophilac—the color of that flower.

Handsome toilets of strawberry-colored ottoman silk are shown, with deep flounces edged with wide cross-way bands of darkest plum-colored velvet, the flounces being put on with several rows of drooping puffs. The back draping is a blending of the two materials; the sides have panels of the velvet, and the graceful Babet coat opens over an embroidered waistcoat, also of the velvet.

Softly draping and semi-diaphanous fabrics such as voile de religieuse and many other varities known under the generic name of veilings will be much worn in combination with merveilleux, white polka-dotted foulards, fine patterned brocades, and also with moire Francais. The most beautiful imported materials in veilings, zephyrs and summer cashmeres are those in box robes adorned with borderings of various widths according to price, the handsomest patterns being an Irish point or Venitian cut work, ten inches deep.

The newest red parasols are trimmed with ficelle lace, the lace being put on each gore in fan fashion. Many of the satin parasols have flower-brocaded linings, with lace arranged on the outside, to be carried with Watteau costumes. Others are of chine silk or broche, edged with marabout. There will probably be more novelties presented before the season is over, but the flat Japanese shaped sunshade has quite disappeared from good society.

Mention has more than once been made of the extent to which beads are worn as garniture and ornaments. Large Roman pearls, tinted with pale mauve, light blue, a delicate pink, and green blending with a sheen of silver or gold, are just now more in vogue than the smaller beads, the former not being so easily imitated in cheaper makes, and their price, which is considerable, insuring them against becoming common. The most expensive kinds, though supposed to emanate from the Holy City, come really from France, from whence the best imitations are imported. There is a marked difference in the quality of these representative gems, some being scarcely distinguishable from real pearls, and their price is proportionate.

Polonaises and princesse tunics, pointed bodices, with panier scarfs and jackets draped with plain, bright colors in surah or sateen, profusely trimmed with lace, and worn over skirts of flowered sateen, either trimmed with the same or plain, and edged with a ruche or a fan-pleating of lace, will be very fashionably worn. For less dressy costumes the gay and pretty zephyrs in "gingham" effects, and other summer materials, such as Oriental momies, flowered cambrics, linens and fine French cretonnes, will be employed. These are made more simply, white cambric or muslin embroidery being a favorite garniture. Broad ribbon sashes and satin or corded waist belts often accompany the bodices of these dresses, which are difficult to fit closely to the form.

Sufficient has been heard and seen to enable us to predict that fine cotton fabrics are likely to be highly fashionable throughout the summer. The popularity of prints, sateens, lawns, and muslins, is to be very great. This sounds very like economy, but the impression that materials that cost so little a yard invariably tend to reduce expenditure is a fallacy of which last year gave many a convincing proof. Ladies who live in cities find in the end that a washing dress, with lace trimmings of Torchon, or Medici even, is about the most expensive investment they can make, costing really more than silk, since the laundress charges such an extravagant sum every time she lays her renovating hand upon it. Last summer simple cambric dresses that ... thirty cents a yard were trimmed with ... upon dozens of yards of lace ...

For summer toilets for good wearing use, fancy checked silks will be in greater demand than ever. Two costumes made of these fabrics are pretty models. The first is a fine pin check in blue and gold. Three shell and rose-pleated ruffles trim the underskirt, and the panier-tunic is edged with dark blue Spanish lace. The pointed bodice is trimmed around the throat and down each side of the front with falls of Spanish lace, and is closed with tiny gold and blue enamel buttons. The second dress is of shepherd's plaid in black and white, the underskirt laid in kilts all the way down. The overdress is shirred to the jersey and is short and jaunty, looped full and high on one side, with an enormous knot and ends of black velvet ribbon. Above this is the black velvet jersey, with a bouquet of artificial wood strawberries set on the left side among a mass of black Spanish lace ruffles pleated around the neck. A small "thatched" straw bonnet en suite was trimmed with a cluster of strawberries and black velvet, mingled with black lace. The parasol is of a fine checked silk, exactly matching that of the dress, and lined with red satin. More elegant than either of these is an imported costume of nuns' gray silk embroidered in white silk. The skirt has a full ruching around the bottom. The overdress, perfect in the effect of its drapery, is trimmed with the embroidery. A small embroidery shoulder-cape is finished with Alencon lace at the edge, and a pretty "lily-poke" bonnet of gray straw is lined with pale pink, and trimmed outside with white Alencon lace, white lilacs, and blush roses. The parasol, of pale gray silk, is covered with lace ruffles and lined with pink.

SATURDAY, MAY 26, 1883.

Mr Watterson is now referred to as the 'Dynamite Bomb of the Democracy." Mr Watterson has fired himself off a good deal. It is true but his explosions do not seem to batter down the walls against which they are directed very often.

It is said that the Homer Lee Bank Note Company of New York is the lowest bidder for the printing of the new postal notes. The contract lasts for four years, and will amount to sixty million dollars worth of work. The successful bidders are required to give a $250,000 bond.

Treasurer Wyman has issued notices to all national banks that in pursuance of an opinion of the Attorney General no return of deposits and capital will hereafter be required of national banks, as it is held that duty on said items, repealed by the act of March 3 1883, ceased with the duty due and payable January, 1883.

A Washington letter says one of the naval officers at the Army of the Potomac banquet was so incensed at General McClellan's allusion to the navy, which implied a failure to co-operate with the Army of the Potomac, that he was with difficulty restrained by his friends from disturbing the harmony and hilarity of the occasion by an excited reply.

It is somewhat remarkable that the free-traders in England who write letters to their organs in this country designed to discredit Mr Porter's letters, content themselves with the general assertion that his statements regarding wages are far out of the way but never venture to give the correct prices of labor. This is the best possible evidence of the correctness of Mr. Porter's figures.

The expedition for the relief of Lieutenant Greeley who is supposed to be somewhere near Lady Franklin Bay, in the arctic regions, will sail from New York in the steamer Alhambra on the 7th of June. Lieutenant Garlington of the Seventh Cavalry will be the commander, and we hope he will rescue Greeley and bring him home. There has already been too much sacrifice of human life in arctic exploration.

Russian finances are apparently in a very bad way. The ordinary expenditure in 1879 was 58,500,000 roubles but last year it had increased to 70,250,000. The increase of the war expenditure is three millions and a half per annum, and that on account of the debt eight and a half millions. The deficit amounts to eleven millions. Two-thirds of the outlay are on account of the army, the navy and the debt. The civil administration is suffering badly for lack of funds. National bankruptcy is not far off.

Gen Crook has not been heard from since the first of May. This is not the first time in an Indian campaign he has been lost sight of for many days and the absence of news from him is no surprise and should not be cause for alarm. There were fears for his safety in the campaign against Sitting Bull after the death of Gen Custer, but he was never in danger because he was never in a position where he could be surprised. Possibly his command is smaller than it ought to be, but he was content to start with it and he knew so well the strength and character of the enemy he is after that there is no reason to fear that he is either reckless or foolhardy.

In the Canadian Parliament on Wednesday Sir John A Macdonald moved the presentation of an address to the Marquis of Lorne who is about to be called away from the Governor Generalship. Sir John made a speech in which he accorded high praise to the Marquis for the manner in which he has administered the duties of his office. He also spoke in complimentary terms of the Princess Louise. His motion was seconded by Mr Blake, leader of the Opposition, who also spoke in praise of the Governor General's excellence as a Constitutional Governor. The motion was unanimously adopted and an address was drafted and sent to the Senate.

A Crystal Palace is soon to be built in the park of St Cloud near Paris. This park is celebrated for its picturesque beauty and for the ruins of its magnificent chateau which was destroyed in the Commune. It has been decided to pull down what remains of the chateau and to erect a building similar to the Crystal Palace in London. It will contain art galleries, museums of curiosities, reading rooms, gymnasiums, panoramas and a cosmopolitan theatre where the dramatic works of all civilized nations, ancient and modern, will be produced. The building will cover eighteen acres of ground.

The Bessemer Steel Works in Bethlehem, Penn., have made a new departure in mining operations having bought a tract in Cuba containing large deposits of very pure and uniform specular ore, which they propose to mine and import into this country. The mines are only fifteen miles from the port of Santiago, and as labor is cheap and the Spanish Government has withdrawn the export duty, it is estimated that the ore can be imported at little above the cost of mining in Pennsylvania. The iron workers in Bethlehem should not fail if courage in experimenting would insure success. They have only lately established a branch of their foundry in Alabama, where the ore, fuel and cheap labor are all to be found together.

The story is telegraphed from Indianapolis says the Tribune that the friends of McDonald have hit upon a new plan to aid their favorite and kill off Hendricks. The programme as laid down is to begin booming the latter for the Presidency and do it so loudly and persistently that he will be made ridiculous. In this way they hope to laugh him out of the race so completely that he can never enter it again. The plan besides will answer another purpose. It will keep the eye of the Democratic party fixed upon Indiana as the State from which it must take its Presidential candidate and yet save McDonald from suffering from a premature boom. By and by, after his rival has been driven from the arena by the laughter of the Nation, McDonald can come bowing and smirking into the ring and begin his old somersaults just as if he had never gone through the same trick before. A shrewd plan, it must be admitted.

THE DANGER OF THE DEMOCRACY.

[Boston Journal.]

The Democratic danger at the present time is in the little word "only." Of itself it is not a very important word, but it is believed to-day by a large number of Democrats that it was the "only" in the party platform in 1880 that brought them defeat. If this was the case, most men who are not Democrats would come to the conclusion that the best thing the Democracy can do in 1884 is to drop this little word from the party platform. Democrats, however, have not considered the possibility of such a method of getting rid of the danger which threatens them, but are discussing the place in the tariff plank of the platform which the word shall occupy in 1884. "A tariff for revenue only" was the declaration of 1880, and this is the order of the words which Mr Watterson, Mr Cox, Mr Morrison and the free trade element insist shall be used in 1884.

The greater part of them cling upon this formula, because they are laboring under the conviction that it will bring more votes while very, very much the smaller part of them insist that it shall be employed because it is right in principle. But there is another section of the Democratic magnates who insist that the word "only" in that position in the sentence will plunge the party into inevitable defeat in 1884, because they believe that a majority of the voters do not believe that a tariff on imports should be laid for the sole purpose of obtaining revenue. Those who are influenced by this opinion would change the position of the word "only" so that the sentence will read "A tariff only for revenue."

At first sight the average voter can distinguish little difference in the two sentences, but those who have devised this new formula of the Democratic faith give an novel explanation which is, that a "tariff only for revenue" means that all of the revenues of the Government must be raised by duties on imports, and that the internal tax system which derives a large revenue from whisky, beer and tobacco, must be abolished.

This rendering will help the Democracy to votes in such States as Pennsylvania while in States like Kentucky and in some portions of the Southwest the obvious meaning of the clause can be declared to be the correct one, as the Democratic party has always been in favor of a tariff which will yield revenue regardless of its effect upon the industries of the country. It is not our intention to advise the Democracy in such matters, but they will pardon us if we simply express the opinion that the latest version—a tariff only for revenue—is nearest the Democratic ideas because it admits a double interpretation and involves a doubt.

A Mississippi member of the next House of Representatives who happens also to be the editor of the Jackson Clarion, is industriously making ready to butt the head of the Democratic party against a stone wall. He wants to see another crusade began against the United States election laws. Whereupon the Vicksburg Herald prints the following bit of history: "We have a rather distinct recollection that a number of Democratic leaders 'so-called,'—in the Forty-sixth Congress, succeeded in making asses of themselves upon this same subject of repeal, and fastening upon the party a load of obloquy and opprobrium, under which a Democratic majority in the next House of Representatives was converted into a Republican majority in the Forty-seventh Congress."

The name of Sir Frederick Johnstone is a new one on the list of owners of Derby winners, but is one of the best known sportsmen in England. The report of the scenes on the Downs shows that the great London picnic does not meet the fate of ordinary races and suffer from a falling off in the number of starters. The Two Thousand Guineas form has been completely overthrown by the Derby running, as Highland Chief this time outstayed Galliard and reversed the Newmarket decision between the pair, while both succumbed to St. Blaise, a horse they had well beaten over the Rowley mile. It must have been a magnificent race when such equine artists as Wood, Webb and Archer, getting the last ounce out of their mounts, are only separated by a neck and half a neck respectively. Those who are interested in the breeding of thoroughbreds will not fail to observe that St. Blaise is a son of Hermit, who was the sire of last year's Derby winner, Shotover.

It would take a man three years to simply read the papers for which Mr. Murch asks,' said Supervising Architect Hill to-night. A member of the commission said, 'the mass of papers for which Mr. Murch asked could not be contained in this great room in which the committee sit. We had to tell Mr Murch that the commission could not adjourn to the files room, but that he might go there, accompanied by any person he pleased, and whenever he found any papers which tended to prove anything, the commission would order these particular papers produced.' Murch, made a long, rambling statement, which was a rehash of charges already published. The statements are serious, and unquestionably some of them are true. There can be no doubt that the buildings and tools at Dix Island, Maine, were sold at very extraordinary loss to the Government, but Mr Hill, against whom the investigation is directed, was not then Supervising Architect, nor did he have any responsibility in the Architect's office. Mr Mullett, who joins Mr. Murch in making some of the charges against Hill, however, was the Supervising Architect. Mr. Murch seems to have no definite plan. It will not be the fault of Mr Hill or of the Treasury Commission that Murch does not prove the charges, if there is any evidence in the Treasury Department which will do it.—Wash Cor. Boston Journal.

THE Admiration OF THE WORLD.

Mrs. S. A. Allen's WORLD'S Hair Restorer IS PERFECTION!

Public Benefactress. Mrs. S. A. ALLEN has justly earned this title and thousands are this day rejoicing over a fine head of hair produced by her unequaled preparation for restoring, invigorating and beautifying the Hair. Her World's Hair Restorer quickly cleanses the scalp removing Dandruff and arrests the fall; the hair if gray is changed to its natural color, giving it the same vitality and luxurious quantity as in youth.

COMPLIMENTARY. "My hair is now restored to its youthful color, I have not a gray hair left. I am satisfied that the preparation is not a dye, but acts on the secretions. My hair ceases to fall, which is certainly an advantage to me, who was in danger of becoming bald". This is the testimony of all who use Mrs S. A. ALLEN'S WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER.

"One Bottle did it." That is the expression of many who have had their gray hair restored to its natural color, and their bald spot covered with hair, after using one bottle of MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER. It is not a dye.

HEADQUARTERS

Wholesale and Retail.

We are constantly receiving large shipments of fresh Halibut, Cod, Mackerel, Shad, Lobsters Corned Fish, &c., by every steamer and by express direct from the Ocean. They are packed expressly for us and by having such a wholesale trade as we do it enables us to have the very freshest Fish in the market. As they are constantly coming in and going out, therefore no old Fish, and our best customers appreciate such Fish and patronize us especially on that account. Although a little out of their regular beat, yet it pays them well to do so and they pay no more than they would to pick up their Fish wherever they happen to see them. More than thirty years experience in the business has taught me that Fish handled by inexperienced persons are not appreciated by the more intelligent part of the community. We make the Fish business a specialty, therefore the Fish are not neglected, as we can devote our whole attention to the business. Thanking the public for their liberal patronage in the past, we hope to still increase our list of patrons.

FORCING THE SEASON!

It may be called forcing the season a trifle to speak of STRAW HATS yet a while, but as we have just got in the finest line of these goods we have ever carried, we will just say in regard to them that the newest shapes and most approved styles can be found at our store.

THE SIAMANC

is the name of a new boot that is going to drive the Dongolas to the only use they are fit for, viz to throw at the midnight cat. These goods will undoubtedly give better satisfaction than the Dongola, for they do not in a little use, assume the graceful shape of a dry, defunct codfish.

THE BURT BOOTS

are our leading boots, and a significant fact about them is, that they are well known in metropolitan cities, while some of the goods advertised as being equal to them are entirely unknown, except in country towns. You are trying no experiment when you buy them, as you are in trying Tom Dick and Harry's goods, (Harry furnishes the best goods of the trio.) "The little man's conceit about "the tub race" was a "happy thought." The race we shall attend will be the human race, and most of the male representatives of it in Bangor, have the good sense to show their gait in the unequalled which placed side of any shoe in B., are "beyond compare." The is the newest out for ladies boots, and in all the scores of different kinds we have kept, none ever gave the satisfaction it does. It is easily applied and does not crack the boot. We have an imported FRENCH BLACKING for gentlemen's shoes, which is put up in a generous box at a low price—polish from it can't be beat. Our stock is new and clean and in greater variety than at any other store in B., and is not misrepresented in any way, and we flatter ourselves that with the low prices and the courteous treatment we extend to all, to render it, the most desirable stock to select from in B.

CURTIS SHOES,

RIOTOUS MINERS.

All Work Suspended.

WILD SCENES OF DISORDER.

ST. LOUIS, May 25. The Post-Dispatch special from Collinsville, Ills., says: The situation to-day is more serious than yesterday. Not a mine on the Vandalia road, between East St. Louis and Troy, is in operation and all are closely watched by the strikers. Mayor Stevens last night ordered all the saloons closed at 8 o'clock and swore in a force of 50 deputies, as drunkenness has increased among the miners. Eighteen or twenty shots were fired about midnight. At 2 A. M. three hundred striking miners assembled near the Abby mine. They ascertained who were driven off yesterday had not returned and they detailed fifty men to remain to see that no attempt was made to start up. Some two hundred started east on the railroad track, and a picket was left at Number 3. When Collinsville was reached they were told that no attempt at work would be made to-day. They then started for the Confidence and Troy mines. A conspicuous feature of the procession was half a dozen men carrying kegs of beer on their shoulders.

That the Men

No Work

was going on at the Confidence mine, but the miners were suspicious and upwards of a hundred stopped there. The beer was tapped and scenes of disorder ensued. Superintendent Weisenburg telegraphed to Deputy Sheriff Lenheim that his property was surrounded by a mob and in danger and called for assistance. At Belleville and Caseyville the miners were joined by a strong delegation from the miners on the Ohio and Mississippi road.

Those Who Did Not Remain

at the Confidence pushed on to Troy, seven miles from here and surrounded Brookside mine, which is the last one on the Vandalia tract. It was in operation yesterday, but on the appearance of the mob this morning the men struck work. Brookside's superintendent also telegraphs invoking the aid of law. The situation is critical and a crisis will be reached to-night.

that many of the passengers who escaped scalding and mangling were drowned, as the boat sunk immediately after explosion The Pilot was owned by Capt Gould. The Court then adjourned till Monday.

No Longer on the Retired List.

It appears that other retired officers of the Army besides Colonel Badeau are affected by the decision which declares Colonel Badeau to be no longer entitled to a place on the retired list of the army, with the rank and pay of Captain. Among them is Daniel E. Sickles, who was retired from the service with the rank of Major-General, April 14, 1869, on account of wounds received in battle. General Sickles was subsequently appointed United States Minister to Spain. When he learned of the decision in Colonel Badeau's case General Sickles wrote to Auditor Ferris, of the Treasury Department, asking whether or not it would effect his own status as a retired Army officer. Auditor Ferris holds, it is understood, that General Sickles's case is strictly analagous to that of Colonel Badeau.

BOWDOIN COLLEGE. There has been considerable talk the past year of either enlarging the present Chemical Laboratory or building a new lecture room. The present building is of ample size for practical work; in the basement are the boiler, furnaces, engine and other machinery, while the upper story contains the apparatus, and is fitted up with tables, one of which is assigned to each of the Juniors. The Seniors who elect chemistry have a special laboratory in Adams Hall, where there are better facilities for weighing, etc.

The trains will leave this city at 6 A. M. For further particulars see advertisement in another column.

SPRUCE FORESTS There appears to be no end to the pests attacking vegetation It now seems the spruce trees of Maine have been invaded by another insect There has appeared on the branches a formation from which something similar to a spider is hatched, which devours the green of the trees. It is something entirely new in this section and those best acquainted with the trees have no previous knowledge of the pest On a small limb a formation appears which looks like eggs, from which a spider-like insect is hatched. Some believe that these eggs are deposited by a beetle that has been seen about the trees.

CHILDREN'S MEETING. The meeting at City Hall last evening, conducted by the Crusade, for the children, was one of unusual interest. After the devotional exercises the address of welcome was very gracefully given by Miss Minnie Thompson. This was followed by a recitation from Marion Parker, also one from Lena Jones. Then followed singing by two young Misses, recitation by Minnie Charlton, dialogue by Lena Hickman and Mildred Varnum, recitation by Gracie Bridges, temperance song by Master Reed, recitation by Lillie Dean, recitation by Cassie Watson Where all were so good it is hard to discriminate This first meeting for the children is very encouraging and we trust will be followed by others of equal interest The Rev. Mr. Ilsley made very appropriate remarks on temperance to the children, to which they listened with much interest The pledge was presented by Col. W. T Eustis All the exercises proved highly satisfactory

GEN. CHAMBERLAIN'S CONDITION. The Bowdoin Orient says: "It is with deep regret that we are obliged to say that President Chamberlain is not improving so rapidly as had been hoped. The first operation was found to be insufficient, and a second one was performed, while a third even is now anticipated The second was similar to the first, and was exceedingly painful. President Chamberlain has been a great sufferer, and it is earnestly hoped that the result of these succeeding operations will be a complete recovery. It is now near the middle of the term, and even if he should recover very soon, some weeks of rest would be necessary to fit him for participation in active college work. It is likely that he will be unable to fill his place this term, and the seniors will be compelled to miss the advantage they would otherwise derive from his instruction The sympathy of the college and the most earnest wishes for his speedy recovery are with him"

ENTERTAINMENT AT THE OLD LADIES' HOME. A very pleasant entertainment was given last evening at the Home for Aged Women, at which there were present a good company of the friends of the Home. Miss Anna B Snowe, the talented elocutionist and reader, kindly volunteered to give an evening's reading at the Home for the pleasure of the inmates and last evening was designated as the time. At eight o'clock Hon. J. S. Wheelwright called the assemblage to order and in a few appropriate remarks introduced Miss Snowe, who gave the following selections "Ride of Jennie McNeal," "Budger's Version of the Flood," "Too Late for the Train" "Archie Dean," "Mother and Poet," "The Deacon's Story," "Guilty or Not Guilty," and "Money Musk" The selections were interspersed by piano solos by Miss Abby N Garland. Miss Snowe was in excellent mood and the pieces were given in a manner that elicited much applause. In the early part of the evening Miss Patten, the efficient matron, escorted the friends of the Home through the spacious apartments.

A LEGAL CURIOSITY. Messrs. Humphrey & Appleton have in their office an old capias writ dated May 27th, 1754, one hundred and twenty-eight years ago, and twenty-one years before the commencement of the Revolutionary War. It was issued at "Portsmouth in the Province of New Hampshire" in the days when "George the Second, by the Grace of God, of Great Britain, France and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, etc," ruled the land, and is directed "to the Sheriff of our Province of New Hampshire, his Under-Sheriff or Deputy," commanding them to attach the goods or estate of Jonathan Biggelow, of Rockingham, within our Province of New Hampshire, husbandman, to the value of fifty pounds, and for the want thereof to take the body of the said Jonathan Biggelow (if he may be found in your precinct) and him safely keep so that you may have him," etc. It seems that Biggelow owed one David Farnsworth a certain promissory note of "eighteen pounds, thirteen shillings lawful silver" which was over due, hence suit was brought to compel payment. The justice in whose name the writ was issued was Theodore Atkinson. The document is quite a curiosity.

MR. GERRISH'S NEW BOOK. The many who read the work on "Army Reminiscences" by the Rev. Theodore Gerrish, of Bangor, will be pleased to learn that this gentleman now has in preparation another book which will be issued in September. While at the South last fall he obtained much important information in regard to the late war which has never been published, and he also made the acquaintance of the Rev. Mr. Hutchinson, of Fredericksburg, a Methodist clergyman, who for four years was a member of the famous Stonewall Jackson Brigade. The book will be a joint production of the two gentlemen, and will give a condensed and correct history of the two great armies to which they belonged. The title of the book is very appropriate—"The Blue and the Gray." It will be an octavo volume of 600 or 700 pages, with twenty full page maps and will contain a roster of both armies for each year. Col. A. C. Hamlin, of Bangor, and Gen. Fitz Hugh Lee, of Virginia, will write introductions for the work. The design for the cover will be a Union ... Confederate ... shaking ... [illegible]

A PLEASANT OCCASION. The residence of Peleg T. Jones, Esq., 61 Third street, was the scene last evening of a pleasant occasion, it being a party given by his daughter, Miss May Jones, in honor of her friends, Miss Lord, of Bangor, and Mr. Whittier, of Saginaw, Mich. There was a large gathering of lady and gentlemen friends who were most hospitably entertained by the agreeable hostess assisted by her parents. The evening was passed in social intercourse, card playing and various games, and a charming song by Mrs. Bright added to the attractions of the occasion. It was a social event much enjoyed by all present.

PERSONAL Mr Chas. I. Collamore has been appointed Superintendent of the Eastern Division of the National Bell Telephone Company and will assume the duties of the office June 1st. J Hern, Superintendent of the New England Division of the Mutual Union Telegraph Company, to Mr. Collamore is thoroughly deserved: "Your letter of 22d at hand. I rejoice to hear of your good fortune. I hope for your sake that you will accept the position, while at the same time I would rather hear of most any other manager leaving our service. Herne's "Hearts of Oak."

The above beautiful domestic play will be produced at the Opera House on next Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings. The length of the engagement in our city is sufficient to assure our people a grand production. "Hearts of Oak" is a beautiful and simple story, simply told. The drama is without a villian, and is superbly mounted, and said to be magnificently acted throughout. The scenery is entirely new and carried by the company, which consists of a special carload. The first scene represents Marblehead Neck at sunset with rolling surf and Lighthouse in the distance. A ship-wreck is produced amidst a magnificent storm of thunder and lightning, while a terific rainburst of real water decends in torrents. The sale of seats commence at the Opera House box office on Monday next.

Mrs. Thomas Atkinson, of No. 29 Ring Street, Providence, R. I., joins the exultant multitude in glad praise and thanksgiven. Mrs A. says,—

"A few months ago I was taken severely ill and obliged to give up my accustomed household duties, and receive medical treatment, and grew worse continually until I was confined to my bed, in spite of the doctor's prescriptions and the best advice that I could get. My sufferings were very severe from the excruciating pains in my back, and my legs were very badly swollen attended with severe pains, which were supposed to be caused by the Rheumatism. A friend of mine who called to see me urged me to try Hunt's Remedy, stating that he knew of the wonderful cures of several parties who had taken this medicine, in cases which seemed very much like mine, excepting that they were in much worse condition than I was. I consented to try the remedy, and begun to take it as directed, and before I had finished taking one bottle the improvement in me was great, and it continued constantly, so that after I had taken less then three bottles I was able to resume my household duties and do my work easily, although I had been confined to the bed several weeks The swelling of my limbs has disappeared, and the lameness and pains in my back gone, all gone. For all of which, under the blessings of a kind Providence, I am indebted to Hunt's Remedy, and I believe that it is my duty and privilege to inform all who are suffering in like manner of the remarkable curative and restorative powers of this remedy, which I cheerfully recommend to all who are afflicted with Kidney Disease and Dropsy."

"NEVER KNOWN TO FAIL."

This motto was adopted some years ago for the wonderful Kidney medicine, Hunt's Remedy. It was a bold banner to carry, for Hunt's Remedy is recommended for some of the most fatal maladies—Bright's disease, and all kidney bladder, liver, and urinary complaints. Hunt's Remedy, the great kidney and liver medicine, is indeed a positive cure, and really is "never known to fail."

NATURE'S STORY.

BY REBECCA R. PIERCE.

The Earth in her robe of glory,
With banners of green unfurled,
Is telling the old, sweet story,
Anew to the waiting world.

Repeating the self-same story,
The Spring-time has ever told,
When the lilac's plumes were waving,
And the meadows were starred with gold.

'Tis heard in the song of the blue-bird;
In the drowsy hum of the bee;
The silvery brook repeats it,
As it hastens to meet the sea.

'Tis told by the timid violet,
With shy and modest grace;
By the sweet and fragrant May flower,
That blushingly hides her face.

'Tis told by the tender azure
Of the bending sky above;
By the breath of the gentle zephyr,
That whispers, "God is love!"

Sky, brook, and whispering zephyr,
Bird, bee, and fragrant flower,
All tell the wondrous story
Of God's infinite love and power.

With never a tone discordant,
With harmony replete,
'Tis told by myriad voices—
That story, wondrous sweet.

And while glad Nature's off'ring
Goes upward from the sod,
Oh, soul of mine, rejoicing,
Give praise to Nature's God!

Orrington, May, 1883.

[From the Belgravia.]

HOW THE MAJOR KEPT HIS WORD.

It is some years ago since the bench of magistrates in one of our Australian colonies was re-enforced by the appointment of Major Hector Morington, late of the —th Light Infantry, who, like many other persons, had been attracted to the new country in the far south by the cheapness of its broad acres.

At the time of Major Mornington's arrival, the country was ringing with the dreadful fame of a man who had adopted the fantastic appellation of "Black Robin." He was the leader of a gang, and his successful daring had rendered his name the terror of all the housewives, as it was secretly the wonder and delight of all the convict laborers. He seemed ubiquitous; here one day and miles away the next; irresistible, too, for all succumbed to the bold free booter's demands. He appeared to have moulded his conduct according to the traditions of those famous highwaymen of old, in whose steps he desired to walk; cultivated a reputation for fantastic chivalry to women, and for a kind of capricious generosity, and prided himself on never using fatally the fire arms he always carried, and on keeping his hand unstained by bloodshed. Other idle and unprincipled young men have mapped out a similar programme for themselves since the days of Black Robin; but generally the sequel turns out very different from their first purpose. The hand may be withheld from the stain of blood for a time, while all goes on smoothly; but when danger thickens, or pursuit grows hot, or when greed cannot be satisfied without violence, the crime of theft is soon allied to that of murder. "Ce n' est que le premier pas qui coute."

But Black Robin still stood on the brink of that fatal rubicon of blood, which he would surely cross some day, and thus half conscious admiration of his boldness mingled still with the associations of terror that clung to his name. His exploits were in every man's mouth, and his astonishing activity gave people enough to talk of. One day it was the mail coach with its freight of passengers and treasure that had been attacked. Every man had been mulcted in his watch and purse, while the lady travelers had escaped scot-free, with reassuring words from the captain of the gang. Another day the police in pursuit of them were surrounded and disarmed in a bloodless fray. And again—boldest of all—six stalwart fellows, in short black masks, who could be none other than Robin's troop, had intruded at a harvest dance, where they had levied black-mail on the men, and with insolent audacity had spun round the room in a dance with the prettiest girls, before they vanished again into the night and darkness, swiftly as they had come, none knew whence nor whither. It was too bad. Every one waited in trembling expectation, wondering what would happen next.

When the district magistrates met again on their next court day, after this last and impudent achievement, a long and anxious debate was held as to the measures which should be adopted for the capture of the gang.

Much indignation was expressed at the pusillanimity of the men in general, and of the police in particular, by persons who had been lucky enough hitherto to escape any chance encounter with the bushrangers. No one reprobated their conduct more forcibly than the new magistrate, Major Mornington, who, accustomed to the more expeditious course of justice in the long-settled countries of the old world, was not disposed to make sufficient allowances for the difficulties attending its administration in wide, sparsely-populated districts.

"The sympathy that crime meets with in this country is scandalous," he exclaimed with vehemence. "It is a blot and a disgrace to the community. The police, I'll swear, are in league with these blackguards, or they are all cowards. It's a crying shame that a gang like that should thrive among us, and that their necks should have escaped the halter so long."

"Yes; very true," replied an older colonist very composedly; "but we are doing our best to catch them. And fellows like these are confoundedly difficult to get hold of."

"By George! I wish I had the chance of coming face to face with them. I'd make short work with Master Robin and his crew, if they were to cross my path. Lord! to think of those young fellows allowing the robbers to take their partners from them. What stuff are your young men made of here?"

"You forget that they were unarmed, and the bushrangers carried a revolver apiece," said the other magistrate quietly.

"Tut—tut! Want of pluck—want of pluck!" sneered the Major. "All thieves are cowards at heart. Show them a bold front and they will fly from you."

"I doubt that, if the thief have a loaded pistol and you have none," remarked another of the party. "But we will wish you better success than we have had hitherto, Major Mornington; and I, for one, shall be truly glad if we owe the capture of Black Robin to your co-operation."

"We shall see, sir. I do not anticipate that, after fighting her Majesty's battles with credit, I am come here to be worsted by a parcel of common highwaymen," was the grandiloquent rejoinder.

The discussion then turned into a general channel, and on the measures to be pursued with a view of more effectually scouring the country, and unearthing the bushrangers from their haunts of concealment. Finally, the council of magistrates separated to regain their various homes, for the shadows were lengthening, and several had a long way to go. Major Mornington's farm lay in a different direction to any of the others, and as he was riding away one of his brother magistrates asked:

"Are you not armed, Major?"

"No, sir. What for, at this time of day, I should like to know?"

"Bushrangers are abroad at all hours of the day, and I always carry my revolver when I am alone," said the former speaker.

"Pooh," was the Major's somewhat contemptuous ejaculation; "I am not afraid of them."

Nevertheless, as he rode away from the little village, and looked out on the wide belt stretching away, lonely and silent, before him, and remembered how few and far between were the human dwellings in these solitudes, he could not but acknowledge to himself that it might have been better had he brought his revolver. He had spoken with a touch of bravado, for, in truth, he had started from home in a hurry, and had forgotten to take it with him. He carried more money with him, too, than was consistent with prudence, having called that morning at the village banker's; but he consoled himself with the reflection that this circumstance could not be known to any stranger he might meet by the way. He rode an excellent horse, and trusted to the fleetness of his pace should he encounter any suspicious-looking individual. In common with many people of his stamp, he believed that, call them as you would, whether by the picturesque colonial term of bushrangers, which has quite a pleasing sort of sylvan sounding, or by the more downright and less euphonious old world name of highwaymen, all robbers must of necessity be cast in one stereotyped and easy recognizable mold—the stout-built, heavy-jawed, sinister-eyed, traditional Bill Skyes type. He was prepared to keep a careful lookout for such characters, and if he should perceive any of that sort stealing out from behind a big tree, or creeping stealthily from under the shelter of some wide, drooping, umbrella-shaped fern, or popping up suddenly from behind a thick tuft of rushes, he felt sure he need but clap spurs to his trusty steed, in order to be borne far beyond their powers of pursuit. It was rather ignominious, as he could not but feel, even to think of the possibility of flight, after his valorous words to his associates; but, on mature reflection, he could not but admit the truth of the axiom that had been propounded by them, viz., that a man who does not carry a revolver is not on equal terms with him that does.

He was not sorry, therefore, when, on looking around, he observed a horseman approaching from the direction of the very township he had just quitted, and as the stranger drew nearer he perceived the latter to be of youthful and rather prepossessing appearance. His dress, though dusty and travel-stained was much in fashion and material as gentleman wear, and fitted him well. His horse, a thorough-bred, bore the marks of fatigue, but the rider sat him with an easy grace, which rendered his jaded condition less apparent than it would have been under management less skillful. He raised his hat slightly to greet Major Mornington, and was passing onward, when the latter spoke in response to his salute.

"You have the advantage of me, sir," he exclaimed. "I have not the pleasure of remembering your face."

He felt lonely, or possibly he would not have troubled himself to speak to a stranger. But people who are newly arrived in a country, and are introduced to an entirely fresh set of acquaintances as the Major had recently been, naturally find it difficult to identify them at first. He did not possess the happy "royal" faculty of recognition, and was, therefore, often perplexed by the effusive cordiality with which he was greeted, by persons whose individuality he vainly strove to recollect. Thus, it caused him no surprise to find that the young man, whom he did not remember to have seen before, appeared to know him quite well.

"No?" replied the stranger, in a cheery voice. "I dare say you do not. But I have seen you on the bench, Major Mornington. Our public men are easy to recognize, you know."

"True, true," said the Major, graciously, for he liked to feel that he belonged to the circle of notable ones, whom everybody knows. Hitherto, while dwelling in crowded cities, where he was but a unit among vast numbers, that proud consciousness had not come much within his experience. One likes to be a great man, even though it be but in a limited circle. The deferential manner in which the stranger had addressed him impressed him favorably, and as he looked more closely at him he thought the companionship of this young and powerfully made man might be both safer and more entertaining than a lonely ride of some eighteen miles through the forest ranges to his home.

"Which way are you going?" he asked, therefore, when they had interchanged a few commonplaces.

"To X——," replied his new acquaintance, naming a township a couple of miles beyond Major Mornington's farm.

"Why, that is close to my selection," he said, in a tone of satisfaction. "Are you settled there?"

"No, I am only going to visit at B——," (naming the station of some wealthy sheep farmer in the neighborhood.) "I am well acquainted with the various families in the district, and they all know me pretty well—at any rate by name. We have all heard of each other at least, even though we do not know each other personally, in these small circles of society, you see," he added, with a pleasant smile.

"Well, we may as well ride together, as we are going the same way," the Major said, with some condescension, for he felt that he was conferring an honor on the young man. "That is, if it is agreeable to you."

"Most happy, if my horse can keep up with yours, sir. But that is doubtful, for he is pretty nearly done up, poor beast."

"You young fellows are too apt to take it out of your cattle, and especially in this country and climate," said Major Mornington, as he eyed the handsome but sadly jaded horse of his companion, who, having accepted the invitation, was now riding close by his side. "I suppose you are too new-fangled here to remember the old adage that bids 'a merciful man to be merciful to his beast?'"

"Mercy is a fine quality when you can afford it," returned the other with a light laugh. "And I cultivate it, sir, quite as much as I can afford, but, sorry as I am for my poor beast, he must carry me on till I can replace him. That is a fine one of yours—a hunter, eh?"

"Yes," answered the Major promptly, for he prided himself on his knowledge of horse flesh, and the praise of his horse was precisely the kind of flattery to which he was most susceptible. He was soon deep in the pedigree of his steed, a subject in which the younger man evinced such intelligent interest as greatly raised him in the other's estimation. "He is a fine horse, though I say it. But I'm never deceived in a horse—ay, nor in man or woman, either. I say knowledge of human nature and of horse flesh go together, Mr. —, Mr.—"

"Robertson," said the stranger, supplying the name for which his companion had, so to speak, put out his feelers. "I hope your discrimination won't be at fault here, sir. You'll need it all in these colonies. We're all sorts of characters here."

"Tut, tut, Mr. Robertson, the world is the same all over, and I have seen a good bit of it ere now. Of course transportation has been a bad thing for the country. I am quite willing to admit that. But it's all past now, and let me tell you sir, if your young men were to show a little more pluck, we should soon stamp out all this blackguardism, or bushranging, or whatever you please to call it, by which your country is infested."

The other agreed with him, and the conversation passed on to the bushrangers and their latest exploits, of which Mr. Robertson gave some racy particulars, which provoked the Major's laughter, and caused the time to pass quite pleasantly. They had left the village and the few outlying homesteads far behind, and had entered the dark forest of tall, monotonous eucalypti. Not another human being was in sight, not a sound was to be heard in the pauses of their conversation, except the rustling of the tree-tops or the crackling of the dead leaves and brushwood under their horses' hoofs as they moved along.

"Are we on the right road?" asked the Major. "I do not see the track."

"Oh, it is quite right. I am just cutting off a corner; we shall be on the right track again in another minute."

"You seem to know the country well," the Major said a little doubtfully.

"Oh, perfectly. I am almost like a native, having grown up in these parts. I know every nook and cranny among these ranges."

Thus reassured, the Major rode on beside him, and the younger man kept up the conversation with much vivacity.

The solitude was intense, the silence of nature unbroken but by their voices.

Suddenly out of that silence, a low, cautious note rose, a sound strangely like a whistle in the distance. The Major reined in his horse to listen, as the note died away.

"I say!" he cried sharply. "What's that? Eh? Any fear of Black Robin and his gang of rascals in these parts? It's lonely enough for anything."

Mr. Robertson, who had not appeared to notice the sound, stopped, too, at his companion's words, and both looked intently in the direction whence it had come. Only the leaves rustled gently in the faint breeze that scarcely stirred them.

"Pshaw!" he said, unconcernedly. "It's nothing. A curlew screaming, perhaps. You are not used to the wild bush sounds yet."

"I could swear it was a whistle, though." And the Major strained his eyes again, to see whether he could detect anything human, that might be moving among the gaunt, white tree-stumps, which stood like ghosts here and there stretching out their scathed and leafless branches, among the waving fern fronds and the solemn verdure overhead.

FARMERS
Never in my life did I have a better line of Implements manufactured by the best Factories of the World—the increased sale warrants this statement. April 1st, the Gregg Iron Works had shipped me just 100 per cent. more goods than at same time last year, and were then four car loads behind orders.
North Wayne Tool Co. have shipped about 500 per cent. more than last year, and still are largely behind.
Plimpton & Son cannot fill all orders, and am obliged to go into the market to buy.
Higganum Mf'g Co., one of the largest Implement Factories of the world, are running on orders given in January.
Nettis & McIntyre are in the same boat.
My other manufacturers are in the same fix.
I am promised increased force of men and hours of work on and after May 1st, when I hope to more promptly fill orders.
Handling goods in such quantities, I am able to make favorable transportation rates, get first-class goods and sell at low prices, for CASH or approved credit.
To prove these assertions, I invite you to call at my Warehouse or write for any information desired.

Those Women Folk.

How Hard-Headed Men Estimate Some Things which they don't Understand.

Anybody who has led a domestic life knows how common such things as the back ache and pains in the chest, are among the women who do the work. Often—and perhaps generally—the distresses are borne without much complaint. The women get about, and the machinery of the house goes on. Beyond this, those coarse-grained animals whom New England women call "the men folks," seldom look. So long as their wives or daughters are not actually in bed, under the doctor's care, the average thick skinned husband and father gives the subject no attention. At the same time the poor household drudges—who deserve a better fate—creep around, broom or utensils in hand, up stairs, down stairs and out-of-doors, doing that woman's work, which "is never done." Losses of loved wives and fair girls—losses whose suddeness and unexpectedness astonish those wooden-pated husbands and fathers—fall, seemingly out of a clear sky, and from the logical sequel to the story of neglect.

Now, you men who stand at the heads of ten thousand such homes, allow us to drop a word in your receptive ears. If these women of yours are worth having, they are worth saving. That back-ache—that pain in the chest? What are they but indications of some organic trouble of the kidneys, the heart, or the lungs? End it at once by the application of BENSON'S CAPCINE POROUS PLASTER. It will soothe that nervous distress, drive away that pain, banish that dull, weary back-ache, give new strength to the body and fresh hope to the heart. No other plasters will do this. The Benson's Plaster, however, is not made to sell—but to heal. It is a remedy which never yet broke its promise—and never will.

Your druggist has it. But before paying your 25 cents and putting the plaster in your pocket, look for the word CAPCINE cut in the middle.

"IT'S A GOOD THING
And I Know it," were the Words of Mr. Levi Porter, the Celebrated Fashionable Cutter in the Firm of Nathan & Taylor, under the Narragansett House, Providence, R. I.—Shows what an Honest Thing will Do.
"It's a good thing; I know it's a good thing." Such were the words addressed to your reporter when he called at the fashionable establishment of Nathan & Taylor, under the Narragansett House, Providence, R. I. The speaker was Mr. Leroy Porter, head manager of the tailoring department of this large clothing house, as he was cutting his way through a mammoth pile of brocades, Scotch plaids and broadcloths.
"I felt sometimes as if there was a cannon ball resting on my stomach. I would have to get up at night, for I was so short of breath. You see in the Spring—our busy season—we are at work sixteen hours per day. Have short times for meals, and at irregular hours. My stomach became very much disordered, and I was all out of health. I tried every kind of medicines. The doctors said it was a touch of dyspepsia. I could get nothing to do me permanent good until a friend recommended Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY. I know it's a good medicine. It has completely cured me of stomach disorders and indigestion. It seems to be a thorough cleanser of the system from biliousness or anything of that kind. I know this for I've tried it. I'm in the best of health now, but should I ever have a dyspeptic turn again Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY would be my source of relief. Dr. Kennedy's FAVORITE REMEDY acts upon the digestive organs in a charming manner, regulating their action, strengthening and purifying the whole system."
Ask your druggist for it.

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.
No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.
A Terrible Cough Cured.
"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me. HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.
Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.
"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours, MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.
"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.
"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.
"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.
No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.
